Dear Students & Parents,

This booklet, in its 48th year of publication, is designed to offer financial aid opportunities to high school students. Over the years, a vast number of students have utilized the enclosed information to generate substantial amounts of money to finance their dreams of higher education. Each scholarship description contains detailed information, so please read carefully.

Scholarship applications can be found in the filing cabinet in the counseling office. Please notify Mrs. Jones if you are taking the last application from the folder. When filling out applications, be sure to use your official cumulative GPA and rank from mid-senior year. (Using a GPA that is not a mid-year GPA will hurt your scholarship application.) You may request your GPA and rank from Mrs. Jones in the counseling office.

Most scholarships are dispersed to the recipient's school. However, some awards are provided directly to the student. If you have any questions about scholarships, please don't hesitate to ask.

Sincerely,

Joshua Albright

scholarship tips

Start Applying Early

- Review the THS Scholarship Book to determine which scholarships apply to you. Each scholarship description contains detailed information, so please read carefully.
- Allow yourself plenty of time to complete applications. Pay close attention to application requirements, what documents to attach, and application deadlines. .
- Proofread your completed application and answer all questions. Don't miss out on a scholarship opportunity due to incomplete applications or missing deadlines.
- Making a calendar of all application deadlines can help!

Essays/Letters of Recommendation

- Some scholarship applications may require recommendation letters. Request letters of recommendation early. Plan to give your recommender two weeks notice so they have plenty of time to write the letter. Teachers, employers and coaches can be great resources!
- Write an essay that showcases you! Read the essay prompt or question and be certain that the essay addresses every point. Be sure to check spelling and grammar.

Additional Documents

Applications may require additional documents. If you need copies, please see Mrs. Donovan in the guidance office.

- FAFSA/Expected Family Contribution, or a copy of your Student Aid Report.
- Acceptance letter from the school you plan to attend
- Financial aid award letter from the school you plan to attend

FINANCIAL AID OPTIONS

POST SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Most post-secondary schools administer financial aid in the form of scholarships, grants, work-studies, and loans. The term “post-secondary schools” includes colleges, universities, trade schools, technical schools, nursing schools, business schools, etc. To apply for financial aid, you are required to fill out and submit a FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) form at www.studentaid.gov. This form determines your financial need. Make sure you find out if there are additional forms your post secondary school wants and where they want them sent. If the school to which you are applying does not send you clear instructions and identify necessary forms and deadlines, check with their financial aid officer.

Many post-secondary schools put the FAFSA application to an additional use. They use it to qualify you for private funds administered by their schools. Other schools may require yet another form, a CSS (financial aid profile) form or an FFS (family financial statement). It is important to know which form(s) your school requires. If in doubt, read the information sent to you with your school acceptance letter, look on the school website, or ask the school’s financial aid director.

STATE GRANTS

Pennsylvania offers a state grant with the amount of the grant varying based on need. The advantage to grants is that they do NOT have to be paid back. In order to be considered, you need to apply to the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (PHEAA). After the FAFSA form is submitted, you will have the option to go directly to PHEAA’s website. Students must fill out an application at the PHEEA website www.pheea.org to be considered for state funding.

VARIOUS LOANS

Several types of educational loans are available. Your financial aid award from your school may include some loans along with other aid. You may also initiate an educational loan(s) through private sources your school would recommend. Subsidized loans are interest free while you are in school, but unsubsidized loans are not. Find out as much as you can about the various loans before you decide. Additionally, there are Parent Plus loans available to parents to assist with costs. Some schools also offer payment plans.

PRIVATE SCHOLARSHIPS

Private scholarships are also available. These are administered by employers, clubs, churches, civic groups, trust funds, high schools, post secondary schools and others. Many sources of aid are listed in this booklet. Others are announced at school, in the media, and on the internet. You may hear about others on your own. We encourage you to search for as many sources of financial aid as possible.

Play the financial aid game wisely

- (1) Do not assume your family income is too high. Apply for aid! Remember, colleges use this form to award all types of scholarships.
- (2) Do not rule out a college because of the cost listed in the catalog. After financial aid, your actual cost at a “higher priced” school may be the same or less than a “lower priced” school.
- (3) Do not wait. Apply for financial aid even if you are not yet accepted for admission. There is no fee to apply or penalty if you decline financial aid.
- (4) Do not use the excuse, “I can’t afford school.” Go for it!
- (5) Be careful of scholarship scams. You should not have to pay to apply for a scholarship.
- (6) Make sure you fill out the FAFSA form on www.studentaid.gov. There is a similar website that ends with .com which will charge you a fee to provide you with the same information as the .gov website.

Don't Get Scammed on Your Way to College!

Financial aid scams are a hot topic these days. You should be aware of the tactics companies use to convince students to buy their services. Here are some of the most common claims students are hearing:

“If you use our services, you’re guaranteed to get at least $2,000 in student aid for college, or we’ll give you your money back.”

This claim doesn’t mean anything. Most students are eligible for at least $2,000 in unsubsidized student loans anyway—and because a student loan is considered student aid, you won’t be able to ask for a refund if that’s all you are offered. No one can guarantee to get you a grant or scholarship. Remember, too, that refund guarantees often have conditions or strings attached. Get refund policies in writing.

“Applying for aid is complicated. We’re the only ones who can help you through the process and find all the aid for which you’re eligible.”

Unlikely, there are many places to get free help applying for student aid. Check with your school counselor or college financial aid office for help filling out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Your school or college also can help you find scholarships. And be sure to try the free scholarship search at www.FederalStudentAid.ed.gov.

“I’d like to offer you a scholarship (or Grant). All I need is your bank account information so the money can be deposited and a processing fee charged.”

Watch out! It’s extremely rare for a legitimate organization to charge a processing fee for a scholarship. Some criminals imitate legitimate foundations, federal agencies, and corporations. They might even have official-sounding names to fool students. Don’t give anyone your bank account or credit card information or your Social Security number (SSN) unless you initiated the contact and trust the company. Such personal identification information could be used to commit identity theft. If you’ve been contacted by someone claiming to be from the U.S. Department of Education (ED) and asking for your SSN or bank account information, do not provide it. (ED does not make such calls.) Instead, immediately contact the agencies listed below. To find out how to prevent or report a financial aid scam, visit or call:

Scholarship Thank You Notes

If you are fortunate enough to win a scholarship, don't forget that some foundation, some person, or some college has generously provided the funding for your scholarship award. As we've stated before, the beauty of scholarships is that they are essentially free money for your education. The organization offering the scholarship is not looking for anything back from you... except maybe a thank you. So take this opportunity and give them the thanks they deserve. It won't take you a lot of time and may help make someone's day. (That good feeling may encourage a donor to give more money toward scholarships down the line.)

We recommend either typing up your thank you letter or penning a hand-written note on nice stationery (assuming your handwriting is legible). It may sound old fashioned, but a hard copy note signed by you will feel much more personal than an e-mail.

A few things you want to include in your letter:

- The name of the donor(s) behind the scholarship. If there are multiple donors, you should send a letter to each, if possible.
- The name of the person being honored, if the scholarship is a memorial scholarship (e.g., Ron Brown Scholarship). It is often good to make reference to the ideals of this person (presumably the person did some good stuff to have a scholarship named after them).
- A little about your future plans. The scholarship committee wants to know they gave their money to someone who is going places and making a positive contribution. If you are about to be a freshmen, tell them where you are going to school and what you plan on studying. Are you going to be a teacher and tutor local students? Do you plan on volunteering at a local hospital near campus while you study pre-med?

Try to be prompt sending off your thank you letter. Don't wait six months before you send them a letter. Also, if it's a renewable scholarship, we recommend sending a short thank you note every year, keeping the scholarship committee up to date on how you are progressing at school and reaching your goals.

Don't Forget All the People that Helped You with the Scholarship Process

You might also want to consider thank you notes (or a verbal thank you, at the very least) for all the school counselors, administrators, advisors, and teachers that helped you with your scholarship applications. Whether they edited scholarship essays, sent off transcripts, or helped uncover relevant scholarship awards, it is a good idea for you to show that their time and effort was appreciated.
